Q3: 1c. Description of Results (1) (limited to 3000 characters)

Our building principals met regularly and frequently with teacher leaders. In addition to formalized meetings that were required by the superintendent, building principals met with teacher leaders (instructional coaches) weekly to discuss the implementation of teacher leadership and to troubleshoot problems of practice.

The leadership team met every Wednesday at the beginning of the school year. Membership included two building principals and three instructional coaches. As our system continued to develop and evolve throughout the course of the school year, the building leadership team decided to meet less frequently, instead opting to meet every other Wednesday morning. The week in between these meetings was dedicated to principals meeting with the instructional coaches who were assigned to their attendance center. The primary focus of these meetings was to do an After Action Report (AAR) of the prior week professional development and to make final preparations for the professional development that was scheduled for the current week. Since professional development is scheduled weekly at Hudson Schools it was always timely to have these meetings in advance of the professional development. When the full team met, many of same principles were applied, however with a broader and district wide view.

This year we were able to strengthen our instruction by developing a comprehensive professional development plan in advance that gave a preview of the entire school year. This plan was developed in collaboration with the teacher leaders and connected to our district initiative. Each week, teacher leaders were able to design and deliver relevant professional development to faculty: math strategies; literacy professional development (primarily as it related to the implementation of FAST and progress monitoring techniques); and technology.
